

DISCOVER CHIROPRACTIC

When Dr. Chris Cox of Discover Chiropractic out grew his old office suite we were tasked with permitting his new location just down the road. This older and more modern looking building held office space that was used by an insurance company and other businesses. By combining old suites we were able to amass a large enough area for Discover Chiropractic. The plan included 5 exam rooms, an employee break room, a scale room, an X-Ray room, a file storage room, a lobby reception, waiting area, and open massage room. In total the suite encompassed over 2400 square feet.

Not uncommon to older structures intended for office use, the electrical service was upgraded due to the increased electrical demand and required X-Ray loads.

Existing roof trusses were left exposed and painted white. Wood laminate flooring was used in the lobby areas and carpeting in the remainder. Light fixtures accent the exposed trusses in creating an almost rural feeling in the suite. A glass block adorned partition was also used to help divide spaces but allow passage of light. Creating a distinct look this project set precedent for Dr. Cox's second location in northwest Tucson.
