

GRAND CENTRAL CLOTHING

Grand Central Clothing is part of a small Arizona clothing boutique chain, which Bright Design Associates has currently designed two locations for. Located within walking distance of the University of Arizona, the goal was to help the owner take advantage of a lively location with an energetic interior.

An upscale womens retail clothier, the owner required much of the existing building to be demolished, including the entire roof and a large portion of the exterior walls. A new street elevation was desired, with an extensive glass facade that provides warm daylit interiors.

The interior is open for changeable display and is notable for the roof truss hung 'cloud' ceiling features, providing a visual break between room and roof structure in an interesting and inexpensive manner. Bright Design Associates and the owner worked closely together and achieved another successful project.
